SMALLER-SIZED, LOWER-PRICED ASSET DEALS PREDOMINATE

Shenzhen capital market volume recorded RMB18.2 billion in 2H 2024, down 10.7% y-o-y. Market activity picked up considerably from the 1H period, and may be thought bottomed-out, yet many investors choose to remain cautious in a wait-and-see stance.

Full-year 2024 transaction volume reached RMB23.8 billion, down 44.0% y-o-y. Of the total 32 transactions recorded, just six exceeded RMB1 billion. For all transactions at less than RMB1 billion, the average transaction value was at just RMB260 million, with smaller-sized, lower-total-price asset deals predominating.

SCARCE LUXURY VILLAS STILL RECOGNIZED BY THE MARKET

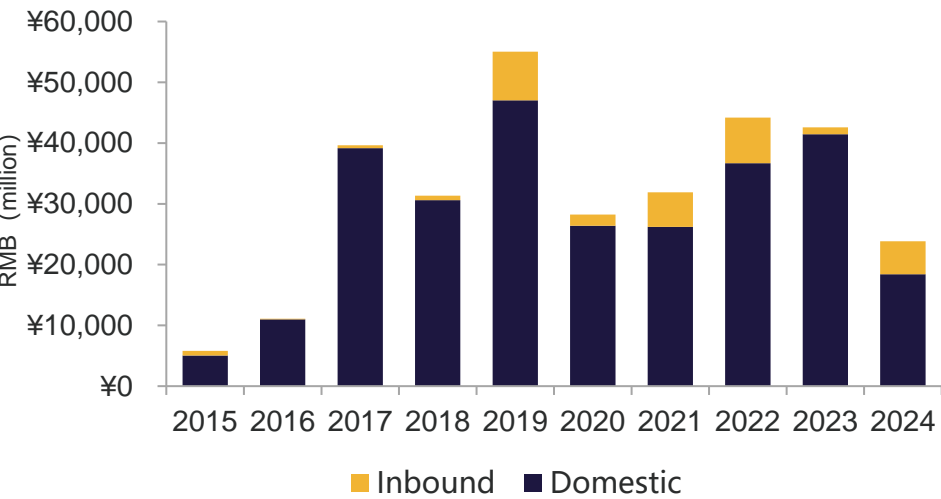

By asset category, office and R&D building transactions were most dominant through 2024, accounting for 42.5% and 37.6% of total transaction volume, respectively. Overall office-use assets accounted for more than 80% of volume. However, the number of consumer infrastructure REITs issued in 2024 prompted investors to pay greater attention to shopping centers and community retail stores with mature operations and higher rates of return. Retail asset transaction volume reached RMB2.6 billion, up nearly 30% y-o-y and accounting for 10.7% of total 2024 transaction volume. Elsewhere, industrial factories and high-priced residential villas attracted owner-occupier buyers, taking 3.0% and 2.7% shares of total transaction volume, respectively.

Government entities and state-owned enterprises were the most active buyers in 2024, accounting for 45.7% of total transaction volume. State-owned platform companies are acquiring office assets for industrial support, with industrial enterprises also purchasing office space for self-use at low prices. In addition, foreclosed asset transactions recorded RMB1.49 billion in 2024, rising 52.4% y-o-y. Of these deals, 40% were for detached residential villas, with most exceeding RMB0.3 million per sq m. Such scarce top-luxury homes are still recognized by the market amid downward trending prices of all asset types.

OUTLOOK

Ahead, more well-run commercial projects with stable returns will enter the ranks of consumer infrastructure public REITs. Notably in 2024, real estate companies were the sellers in 70% of total transaction volume, and we can expect that the trend of real estate companies selling non-residential assets at low prices to ease capital pressures will continue.
